LAW ON STOPPING FOR SCHOOL BUSES

Richmond, Va.- With the opening of schools this month, Dr. Dowell J. Howard, State Superintendent of Public Instruction and member of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee, asked Virginia drivers to do more than their share in protecting school children.

"The public school system alone is expecting about 700,000 pupils, and their ranks will be augmented by those attending private and parochial schools," he said, "so we simply must look out for them not only at the beginning of school but all through the session."

Dr. Howard observed that 186 young people under 20, or 23 per cent of the state's toll, died in traffic last year. In addition, 7,371 were injured. He advised motorists that the most dangerous times were those when children were going to and from school, and at recess, and urged that they compensate for youthful carelessness with strict adherence to traffic laws and alerted attention to driving. "Always expect anything from a child in traffic and always expect them to be in the vicinity of schools," he warned.

In closing, Dr. Howard observed that some 3,600 buses would operate daily and called attention to Virginia's law requiring a full stop when meeting or overtaking a halted school bus while it is loading or discharging children.

At the same time, Col. C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police observed that all school buses are distinctly marked and that the Code of Virginia makes no exception to the law requiring a full stop when a bus is on a four - lane highway, even though it be divided. "This offense can bring a charge of reckless driving," he said, "and it cannot be an acceptable excuse to plead other cars stopped behind the bus obscured the driver's vision. A line of parked cars should mean to anyone that there is a good reason for stopping."

BOWHUNTING OPPORTUNITIES GROWING IN VIRGINIA

Richmond, Va.- Bowhunting opportunities in Virginia are increasing every year to keep pace with the enthusiasm and growing number of archers, both resident and out-of-state, who are taking up the exciting sport, according to Virginia Travel Council.

Bowhunting in Virginia is old and youngest sport, it is filled with the lidiots and regulations regularity only within recent years. the Western sport of the bow took Eastern archers of the ranges and into the field. Fast growing in popularity, handful of archers of 1951 have of age in the statewide Bowhunters Association with active membership.

Virginia's new happy ground for bowmen is on land in the James River. The acre tract, maintained by the Waterfowl Refuge by the Game Commission, will be for its second special season row season again this fall will be 3 weeks of hunting for fox and raccoon: Oct. 17-22; 24-29; and Oct. 31 - Nov. 5 chuive.

Hunting will be by special only and application forms secured from the Va. Commission Game and Inland Fisheries, 1642, Richmond 13, Va. They be returned, if possible, by 23, 195.

Approximately 65 hunters allowed on the area each day if applications exceed this number permits will be issued on a basis. Campers who plan to the island three or more days be given special consideration the first and third week. may hunt more than six days ing the season. No one under be allowed on the area.

Hog Island, however, often one of the bowhunting spots in the Old Dominion this fall will also be a special season statewide, Nov. 1-10, including ing which does as well as hold be legal in any county which open season on deer. In game may be taken with the arrow which would be legal the respective counties during general open season. Of course, ing that general season, one may count on the same footing the gun hunters.

SLOW DOWN
Lives are in Your Hands

Schools are now in session. Won't you be extra careful so that no child or school bus will be a victim of traffic accidents! Observe the law on passing School Zones, and School Buses. Go beyond the letter of the law—and "give the kids a break."

Fall days are happy driving days. Virginia is never so beautiful as in the Fall, and naturally you will be using the highways more. But take it easy—get there safely—and back home, too. Unfortunately, Virginia has had an increase in highway deaths thus far in 1955. Let's unite to keep down accidents for the weeks remaining in the year. It is everybody's business. It is YOUR business!

The public spirited sponsors of this Community Message, urge you to go all - out to make our town streets and public highways safe. "Playing Hookey From Safety is Kid Stuff!"

Last year 186 young people, under 20, died in traffic accidents in Virginia. In addition, 7,371 were injured. There are some 3,600 School Buses operating daily in Virginia. The law requires you to come to a full stop when meeting or overtaking a halted School Bus while it is loading or unloading children.

Operation Heartbreak -

"What can I do to help?"

Hardened highway authorities choked as they read this desperate appeal in a grieving mother's letter. It was about a new plan to reduce traffic accidents she had just read in her newspaper. Her son, riding with a 15-year-old licensed driver, had been killed in 1952. In her anguish and sorrow and the aching void in her family circle, her first thought was for other mothers. She felt she must do something to save others from that endless heartbreak which strikes into some 40,000 homes every year.

"What can I do?" she pleaded. "As a citizen I feel that such a plan is most worthy of everyone's consideration. As a mother whose boy was one of 38,000 Americans who lost their lives, I will whole-heartedly enlist to recruit others—to put such a plan into effect."

Must other mothers and fathers be so tragically shocked into a life-saving crusade to stop this killing on the highways? Not if you do your part in the way you drive. And you can join community projects to make streets and highways safer, too. A citizenry sick and ashamed of this reckless, heedless, unnecessary killing could contribute much to saving thousands of lives.

Think safety—talk safety—drive safely!

Since 1931, Virginia traffic fatalities during October, November and December have comprised 30.44 of the total. In 1954, they accounted for 33.82 per cent. This is the time of the year for extra precaution!
